Mr. Morris Cuts Out a Few More Wires in His War on Guttenburg Bookies.

MORRIS PARK RACE TRACK, June 10.—Race horses who visited Morris Park this afternoon hoping to escape the furnace-like heat that was pouring down in the city might just as well have stayed in town, for there was very little relief for them at the race track.

There was a breeze stirring, but very little of it filtered through the back of the grand stand.

The programme to-day was first class and the track was in superb condition.

Mr. Morris took another step to-day shutting off Guttenburg from obtaining any information. The wires which supplied the Western pool-room were cut and the newspaper correspondents were unable to send anything from the grounds until after the third race.

The opening event of the day was a seven-furlong handicap, the imported horse, owned by Col. North, was a prime favorite.

The management of the New York Jockey Club is trying to arrange a race for horses that are eligible to the American Derby. As a trial of the merits of the respective candidates the race would prove very interesting.

It is not probable, however, that the race will fill, as there are several owners who are averse to showing their hands before the final call is made.

In case the race is arranged it will be run on Wednesday next. It is said that M. F. Sawyer, who is in charge of the club, has already arranged to have the race run on Wednesday next.

STARIN IS NOT LONELY.

Success as a Negotiator Led to His Downfall.

He Used Judge Giegerich's Name and Played the Races.

Heid on Five Separate Charges This Morning.

Charles W. Paul, who until a few days ago was a clerk in the County Clerk's office, was held in Jefferson Market Police Court this morning for the Grand Jury on four separate charges of forgery and one of grand larceny—enough, should they be proven, to send him to prison for the remainder of his natural life.

In every instance the name of Judge Leonard A. Giegerich, of the Court of Common Pleas, was forged, and the victims were his friends and personal acquaintances.

Judge Giegerich took an interest in Paul, who was quick-witted, frugal and showed industrious inclinations four years ago, when he had been in the direct cause of many benefactions, which Paul seemed to fully appreciate.

Paul obtained an unenviable position in a commercial house through Judge Giegerich's recommendation in 1892, and was appointed clerk officer in the City Court, and two years ago last month was appointed clerk of the County Clerk's office at a salary of $1,300 per year through Judge Giegerich's influence.

In 1892 Paul formed a co-partnership with a man named Crawford, and opened a saloon at 477 Broome street. Last January he sold out his interest in the saloon and according to his statement was for some time a successful business man. His partner's wife, giving him a note for $2,000, was the result of his success in negotiating this loan.

He attributed his downfall, he indicated last week, to the fact that he had been deceived by Judge Giegerich's recommendation in 1892, and was appointed clerk officer in the City Court, and two years ago last month was appointed clerk of the County Clerk's office at a salary of $1,300 per year through Judge Giegerich's influence.
